

Ch. 6 Reading Guide: Duel for North America (pg. 101-115) (Seven Years' War/French & Indian War)

Learning Targets

Target # 1: I can identify examples of how the British attempted to reassert control over its colonies, and list examples of colonial reactions, and list the political, social and economic issues faced by American colonists as they tried to form the new American Republic.

Target # 2: I can explain (using historical thinking skills) how the British attempted to reassert control over its colonies, and explain (using historical thinking skills) colonial reactions to this attempted control, and describe the political, social and economic issues faced by American colonists as they tried to form the new American Republic.

Big Ideas:

- The French colonists had different economic goals than did the Spanish and the English, and they used trade alliances and intermarriage with American Indians to acquire furs and other goods
- Competition over resources among European rivals led to conflict regarding colonial possessions and with American Indians
- Great Britain began to strengthen its control over its colonial possessions in order to protect its empire
- British attempts to strengthen its control over colonial America sparked a colonial independence movement that would eventually lead to war
- As the French were removed from North America, attempts were made by American Indians to regain control which resulted in new white-Indian conflicts

Prediction Statement (50 words or less): What is one prediction you have about what you will learn based on the big ideas above?
